ABOUT THE PERSECUTION PILGRIMAGE

Watch the introductory video of the pilgrimage on our website tatest.org/visit.

The Persecution Pilgrimage in Estonia provides an opportunity to become a part of the story of spiritual resistance, complete trust in God, and the suffering of one nation. To better understand all this history and trials, we will take you on a journey through the story of one Christian family and a nation. You will have a chance to hear about past sufferings and gain an understanding of what it means to be persecuted as a Christian. Through this experience, you will learn how to keep your faith alive and what it means that hopelessness has no place in our lives.

Estonia was occupied for 50 years after WW2 by the aggressive, atheistic Soviet Union. This regime tried to break our deep Christian roots. Unfortunately, they were quite successful. During the first 10 years of Soviet occupation, 2/3s of Lutheran pastors were killed, imprisoned, or escaped from the country. Estonia lost every fifth of its slightly over one million inhabitants as a result of the terror of the occupying power. Before WW2 98% of Estonians were Christians; today only around 12% are members of different Christian churches.

Pilgrimage takes you to the paths where Pastor Eenok Haamer lived through the most difficult and pivotal times of his life. Eenok's father, Pastor Harri Haamer, was arrested and taken to a slave labor camp in Siberia in 1948. After that, his whole family was in danger, and they had to flee deportation to avoid being taken to Siberia as well. Therefore, as a teenager, Eenok had to hide in the forest with his mother and brother for six years, living in an underground bunker for nearly four years.

Eenok is 88 years old today, and the participants of the Persecution Pilgrimage have an extraordinary opportunity to go with Eenok to the places where he hid himself and hear about these experiences from him himself.

In addition, we present the story of the suffering of Estonians under communism in a broader way, which also gives an opportunity to understand the context of the war taking place in Ukraine today.

PREPARATION FOR THE PILGRIMAGE

- In order to prepare for the upcoming pilgrimage and share important information, there will be at least one group meeting via the use of Zoom or other similar technology.
- For background information and preparation for the pilgrimage, we recommend reading Pastor Harri Haamer's book "We Shall Live in Heaven", which is his testimony of faith, recounting his experiences in a Soviet slave labor camp. Paperback of the book is available in Amazon amazon.com/dp/994999313X. You can download for free the PDF and Kindle version as well as the Book Study Guide from tatest.org/haamer-family/book.
 - The foreword, introduction and epilogue provide also an overview of what happened to Harri Haamer's family during his imprisonment and what suffering Estonians had to experience due to the Soviet occupation.
